

electromagnetic field, resulting from moving electrical charges, and their direction is away from such charges; Therefore wave absorption does not affect the behavior of the charges, resulting in all two types of fields; The first is the nearby field, the second is the remote field, and therefore the wave is another form of the distant field, resulting from the change of the electric field to the last magnetic