

Percussion is a manual technique used by respiratory physiotherapists to improve airway clearance by mobilizing secretions in one or more lung segments to the central airways. It is performed with the aim of loosening thick, sticky or retained secretions from the chest wall[1]