

The indiscriminate and unconscious use of antibiotics in the clinic, agriculture, and livestock have been increased the selection pressure in the worldwide microbiome, inducing resistant, multiresistant, and pan-resistant pathogen bacteria selection [1,2,3]. This resistance is reaching a critical point, as the increase in these resistant, multi-resistant, and pan-resistant pathogenic strains causes serious medical complications