

In general, I found this short story interesting because it attracts us to know the events and how the family was strong and does not give up, and also how they cared for their son when he fell ill. My favorite part of the short story was when Igor is finally cured of the disease and his health is good because when he was sick his condition was very difficult and he could not move. My least favorite character was the doctor because he didn't try to find out about Igor's disease. My favorite character is the father because he did everything his son wanted, even if it is impossible.
