An array is homogeneous aggregate of data elen	nents in which an individual element is identified by its position in the aggregate relative to the first element