

Planning web development involves defining goals, conducting research, creating a sitemap, designing wireframes, developing a content strategy, choosing the right technology, testing the website, launching the website, and monitoring and maintaining it