

Means-End Theory A means-end chain suggests that an advertisement should contain a message, or .means, that leads the consumer to a desired end state