

Homeland Security: we now know it did not appear until the U.S. experienced the unprecedented 9/11 terrorist attacks on its soil, although the roots of this concept can be traced at least to the civil and air defence programs of World War II