

Combining furnace, high precision balance, and automation, to create the optimal solution for moisture and ash analysis, and results in the continual generation of viable and repeatable data