

An economy's productivity rises as the number of educated workers increases since skilled workers can
.perform tasks more efficiently