A plug is a part with some type of projection that goes into a port.The term connector describes either a port or a plug.