

Ultimately, I think it comes down to individual awareness and conscious decision-making. We have the power to reclaim the authenticity of special occasions by reevaluating our priorities, resisting societal pressures, and making choices that reflect our genuine desires and intentions. By doing so, we can cultivate more meaningful and fulfilling celebrations that resonate on a deeper level.