

Strategic management is a rational process that includes a set of clear leadership plans that are translated through a set of administrative steps: environmental analysis, strategy formulation, strategy implementation, and evaluation and control, taken to achieve the organization's long-term goals