

Therefore, simile was the most vivid and expressive art to express the Arabic environment in its different eras and areas. There are many forms and types of simile in pre-Islamic poetry and the early years of Islam, as well as in the Quran. These similes were used to depict the meaning in the best way possible and make the form more splendid. The Holy Quran's similes had an important impact on Arab speech