

Assyrian people had suffered from lion attacks, especially during market days and other important events.