

Once upon a time, there was a queen named Cassiopeia who bragged about her beauty. Cassiopeia was placed in the night sky as a constellation, forced to circle the celestial pole as a reminder not to be too proud. This made the sea nymphs mad, and they complained to the sea god Poseidon. To punish her, Poseidon sent a sea monster to her kingdom