

There are a lot of family pictures that I love, but this one is my favourite. It is a picture of me holding my newborn little sister. It was an unforgettable day. It was Friday afternoon, and the whole family was gathering at my grandpa's house. I hugged her before she left. Whenever I look at it, I remember the day my little sister was born. "Your little sister is ready to come into the world!" she said. "You're going to be a big sister!" I was so excited
