

A feasibility study is a tool used during a business development process to show how a business would .operate under a set of assumptions