

Hello, everyone. Some of the most popular styles are BMX, which stands for bicycle motocross, and involves riding on dirt tracks, ramps, and obstacles; trials, which is about overcoming natural or artificial obstacles with precision and balance; and freestyle, which is about performing tricks on flat surfaces, such as streets, parks, or skateparks. Bicycle tricks are when people perform amazing stunts and maneuvers with their bikes, such as jumping, spinning, balancing, and more. I wanted to learn more about this trend, so I did some research and found out that there are different styles and levels of bicycle tricks, from beginners to professionals. It's also advisable to ride in safe places, such as designated areas or supervised facilities. They can also participate in events and competitions, where they can showcase their talents and meet other cyclists. Creativity is essential to invent new tricks and combinations.
