

Ethics in research refers to the set of principles and guidelines that govern the conduct of individuals involved in the research process