

Enhancing ethical leadership within the organization requires a multifaceted approach. Organizations should also encourage open dialogue between leaders and employees, creating an environment where concerns can be freely expressed and ethical guidance is readily available