Conventional cars run on gasoline or diesel with internal combustion engines (ICE). Gasoline models are common and cheaper; diesel cars are efficient for long distances. Easily refueled, they travel far. Yet, they produce air pollution and carbon dioxide, making them practical but environmentally unfriendly.

lakhasly.com © تم تلخيص النص بواسطة موقع لخصلي