

Additionally, the steady-state heat conduction equation is mentioned for modeling heat transmission through solid materials in a greenhouse, with a focus on heat transfer rates through frame and window materials.