

They had been secretly seeing each other for a while because they didn't want the evil witch to find out about their relationship. He staggered from tree to tree, tripping over rocks and stumbling over thorny bushes, calling out to his Rapunzel. The witch took the scissors and cut her long blonde hair, sentencing Rapunzel to a life of solitary life in a tower in the middle of a dense forest. But one morning after climbing into her room, Rapunzel told her that she was much heavier than the prince and that she could barely lift her up. The witch was furious. He wandered from town to town, peeking into every village, but Rapunzel was nowhere to be seen. The prince wandered for several years until he reached a dense forest and sat down to rest under a tree and cried loudly. Rapunzel was the loneliest person in the world. He was frightened by how ugly she was and he fell into the thorny bushes and went blind. Blind and unhappy, he searched the world for his Rapunzel. Along the way, he ate berries and drank water from a stream. His misfortune was growing day by day because he was constantly thinking about the beautiful Rapunzel and her beautiful voice. The witch still came to the tower every morning and did not notice anything strange in Rapunzel's behavior. It was Rapunzel
