

In the first stanza, the poem "song" reveals the happiness of life in the forest of Arden. The first verse emphasizes the peace and freedom people feel in the Greenwood. It assures people that the hardest enemy that could be met in the quiet forest is the cold and rough weather.