

Internetwork is the method of interconnecting two LAN networks using network devices. By internetworking, computers in different floor can work separately and by connecting switches of different floors to router, workstations can access to internet using router connected to ISP. switch can be connected to server computer or form a LAN