

Humans have been utilizing solar energy since ancient times. Ancient civilizations, including the Greeks, Romans, and Chinese, designed buildings to maximize sunlight for heating and lighting. They used materials like glass and mirrors to capture and focus sunlight for various applications