

INTRODUCTION Water reclamation and reuse can be significant steps forward toward global sustainability. Ozonation is commonly applied in wastewater reclamation facilities globally as an effective tertiary treatment procedure (Tang et al., 2014).