

The poem teaches us that if we are always hesitating and worried about what others think, we might miss important moments in life. This fear and doubt stop him from taking chances or living fully