

Student life is hard to define. You will only get a sense of what it truly means to you once you're amongst it. In this section we expose some of the myths about student life to ensure you don't enter your studies with too many grand illusions. Or is it mainly late nights in the library finishing your assignments? Is it lazing around on campus lawns with friends? Is it reading the student newspaper in the campus coffee shop? The truth is that student life is different for everyone
