

Punxsutawney Phil is easily the most famous groundhog in the world. However, every February 2nd, Phil is placed in the ground at Gobbler's Knob, where he carries on a tradition that is over 100 years old. One day in 1969, John Rendall and Anthony Burke saw a real live lion cub in a London department store window. The lion, whom they named Kristyan, is said to have been an affectionate and extremely cooperative cat who even used a giant kitty litter box. Kristyan was pampered
