

The research paper presents a mobile app solution that enables musicians to read and play musical notes by leveraging image processing techniques. The idea is to shorten the time it takes to analyze a musical piece by processing the sheet music with mobile image processing technologies, thus facilitating the learning and performance process.