

This mechanism is characteristic of steroid hormones and thyroxine. Spontaneously pass through the plasma membranes of their target cells to the cytosol, where they bind to their cognate receptors. Steroid hormones