

They don't know if your products will work that's mean they are not sure this decision will succeed. Talk about the products like you tilling a story. Be a teacher not a salesperson customer like to feel that they are the one who make decisions so try to attract them to the product with their interest to make them feel that they are making the choice