

Other governments issue import deposit requirements that require businesses to deposit certain percentages of their foreign exchange funds in special accounts before being granted import licenses. Parties exchange goods and then sell them in world markets for hard