

Preventing or mitigating insider threats requires a combination of strong access controls, monitoring and logging systems, data protection measures, and a proactive security culture