

Both Biber and Leech provide insights into the relationship between quantitative and qualitative methods in corpus linguistics, but they emphasize different aspects and approaches. Biber's Perspective: Biber highlights the essential role of quantitative techniques in corpus-based studies