

Congenital insensitivity to pain or congenital insensitivity to pain (CIP for short) is the inability of the sufferer to feel pain, and it is considered a very rare medical condition. It differs from hereditary sensory .autonomic neuropathy, whose causes and symptoms are more clear