

It implies that while technology may make certain aspects of life more convenient or efficient, it can.5 also strip away the emotional and sensory richness of human connection.Infer The poet's use of .irony suggests a critical message about technology's role in modern relationships