Free software refers to software that gives users the freedom to run, modify, and share it. The term "free" refers to freedom, not price. It allows users to access the source code, adapt it to their needs, and distribute copies, including modified versions, without restrictions.