Destinations can be classified into two types, primary and secondary.Secondary destinations generally have the same type of attractions as the primary destinations, but they are visited as a result of their location with respect to the primary destination.Secondary destinations are those that have shorter length of stay than the primary destinations.