

The course content and lectures introduced me to various key concepts and formatting that are required in the writing process. The writing process is largely based on exploring ideas and concepts, gathering relevant information through credible sources, and organizing the information gathered in the written piece from introduction to conclusion. In my experience, the writing process is based on identifying the ideas and gathering relevant information to transform the information acquired in an organized manner that facilitates readers to understand the content of the paper. The writing process revolves around various components such as the content of the academic paper, formatting, referencing, etc. The writing process includes various sub-processes such as brainstorming for ideas, drafting an outline, and writing .for the outline. The writing process requires a framework to organize the course content
