

Talking is the practice of communicating or exchanging thoughts and opinions through the use of phrases that are passed through utterances, also known as speech. Another similarity is that both methods help one convey their message in a timely and efficient manner regardless of their position.