

latitude affects climate because where a biome is located on a map far north or south from the equator, it changes the temperature causing a change in the overall climate latitude