

law that states that the acceleration of an object is equal to the net force exerted on the object divided by the object's mass