

Part of the problem is that BPA behaves like an artificial hormone, and some research indicates that it could have a whole range of undesirable impacts if enough gets into your body. This is especially the case if you are young, or haven't been born yet