

As a major environmental risk factor, HPV infections on their own have been discovered to be insufficient to cause cancer