

My mother and father both are my inspirations. They are my guide and give me the courage to battle obstacles in life. My mother always smiles, no matter what the circumstances are and that gives me the strength and inspiration to face all problems. He has supported me endlessly-- believing in my dreams and cheering for me as they become a reality. They have made me disciplined, dedicated and sincere. He is my shoulder to lean on, my ear when I vent and my semi regular lunch date. My passion for helping others and using my experiences to better the world is completely inspired by him. What I am today and what I will become in future involves the support and affection of my parents. They are my pillars of strength. My parents fill sweetness in my life
