

The field is the impact of the construction sector on global carbon emissions. The construction sector contributes to about 38% of global carbon emissions, making sustainability a key priority