

- o Business markets (Companies selling business goods and services often face well-trained and well-informed professional buyers who are skilled in evaluating competitive offerings)